Healthcare as Amazing as Their Potentials

ABOUT CHILDREN'S OF ALABAMA

Since 1955, Children's of Alabama has provided specialized medical care for its most vulnerable children, offering research, innovation and passion for the improvement of children's lives. From being the first children's hospital in the South to the first Heart Research Center, Children's of Alabama has been a pioneer in the development and delivery of care. Today, we're proud to offer the nation's largest pediatric subspecialty and tertiary care program. The medical staff consists of world-class faculty and Children's is a premier academic and research teaching hospital.

PODCAST: PIONEERING SURGERY SPARES INFANTS FROM HELMETS

The Clark and Constance Center at Children's of Alabama is one of the leaders in the country with one of the most advanced pediatric cardiac surgery programs in the world. From child cardiac transplantation to congenital heart block, our team has the skill, passion and commitment to provide the best care for our patients. In our latest podcast, we explore the history of pediatric cardiac surgery and highlight the role of our interdisciplinary group with heart surgery, neurosurgeons, plastic surgeons and a cardiovascular pathologist.
